

We Miss Your Company

• TO OUR TOUR-PLANNING FRIENDS •

We know your job isn't easy right now.

It never is, really, but these uncertain times make planning your trips even more difficult. We're working from our homes, just as you likely are, but we're here and just a phone call or an email away.

We're disappointed that we can't be working together with certainty on planning your tours, but the sooner we band together to stop the spread of COVID-19, the sooner we can begin to plan together again.

In the meantime, let's take a cue from our friends and families around the world to stay upbeat, be good to our neighbors, and get through this together.

We miss you at the "Dinner Table of the South."
